

Ibis Cloud Domain Privacy

Prevent your contact details being exploited

As a domain name owner you are required to provide genuine contact details associated with your domain, often referred to as WHOIS information. These details are freely accessible to anyone looking up your domain name.

Unfortunately, this information is regularly used by spammers, direct marketers and other third parties to acquire your contact details for their own profit, leading to you seeing an increase in email spam, physical junk mail, sales calls, and your details being sold on to more companies.

The good news is that we are able to protect this information for you using our domain name privacy product. For just £9.00 per year we will protect your real identity in the domain WHOIS databases by providing generic contact information using our domain name identity-secured.com. So rather than your address, your phone number and your name being displayed, all they see is identity-secured.com.

How does domain privacy work?

For just £9.00 per year we'll protect your real identity in the domain WHOIS databases by providing generic contact information using www.identity-secured.com. So rather than your personal or business address, email, phone number and name being displayed, all they see is identity-secured.com.

Can people still contact me?

You don't need to worry about losing any potentially wanted messages. People can still contact you by completing the form on www.identity-secured.com, and we will securely and automatically forward the email to the contact email address listed on file for your domain name. At no time will the sender see any of your contact information and you don't have any obligation to respond to them. You stay in control of your domain and your contact details.
